Free Economic Development Workshop on Feb. 9 to Focus on ‘Strategic Doing’

February 4, 2010

MORGAN COUNTY, Ind. - Ed Morrison will present a free economic development workshop called “Introduction to Strategic Doing” on Tuesday, February 9 from noon to 1:30 p.m. at the office of the Community Foundation of Morgan County. Lunch will be provided by Home Bank.

Morrison is one of the founders of the Ohio non-profit organization I-Open, which helps businesses and communities to engage citizens, build networks, and launch initiatives through civic forums. Morrison is currently working with Purdue University and communities throughout Indiana.

The event is organized by Jon Speer of Creo Quality, a Morgan County-based consulting and planning business.

“Many groups find their wheels spinning with strategic planning, but Morrison can help organizations move from ‘strategic planning’ to ‘strategic doing,’” Speer said.

Morrison and the staff of I-Open work with colleges and universities, libraries, economic development organizations, workforce development organizations, and community foundations to link individuals and leverage assets.

Anyone interested in the economic development of Morgan County is welcome to attend. To reserve a spot for this free workshop, contact Jon Speer at jspeer@creoquality.com or (765) 315-2736.

The event is hosted by the Community Foundation of Morgan County, and will take place in the CFMC office in the Academy Building at 250 N. Monroe St., Mooresville.
